SEYMOUR, INDIANA, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 25, 1919.

PRICE TWO CENTS.

BUYERS OF WHEAT MUST GET PERMIT

Government Department Takes Step to Protect Guaranteed Price For The 1919 Crop.

LOCAL DEALERS ARE AFFECTED

Farmers Who Sell Only Their Own
Grain Are not Required to Take Out Licenses.

All local wheat buyers are affected by the announcement of the government wheat director that licenses must be procured from the government before they can engage in the business of buying and selling wheat. They are now under license for 1918 and it is expected that the new licenses will be issued within the next few days. Application forms are being issued to buyers.

The proclamation signed by the president and made public through Julius Barnes, federal wheat director, will go into effect July 15. It applies to the business of "storing or distributing wheat, or manufacturing, storing or distributing wheat flour" as well as to the manufacture of bread or other bakers products, either wholly or partly from wheat flour. The exceptions are listed as follows:

"(A) Bakers and manufacturers of bakery products whose consumption of flour in the manufacture of such products is, in the aggregate, is less than fifty barrels per month.

"(B) Retailers and farmers or cooperative associations of farmers or other persons with respect to the products of any farm or other land owned, leased or cultivated by them." Common carriers are required to secure on or before July 15 a license from Mr. Barnes "in such form, under such conditions, and under such rules and regulations governing the conduct of the business as he may from time to time prescribe."

It is explained that farmers who sell wheat grown on their own farms or on land under their control are not required to secure licenses, but if they make a business of buying wheat for shipment they must comply with the regulation.

At the Blish Mills it was stated that the purpose of the license is to protect the farmer so that he will receive the guaranteed price for the 1918 crop. The guaranteed price for this year is $2.25 at Chicago, which means that the local price probably will be $2.10, which is two cents higher than during the thrashing season last summer.

FREE CLINIC MAY BE ESTABLISHED

To Be Conducted by U. S. Health Service for Treatment and Cure of Venereal Diseases.

STATE HEALTH BOARD TO AID

City Would Be Required to Provide Room and Equipment—Treatment Refused to None.

Dr. James G. Royce, of Indianapolis, chairman of the publicity bureau of the Indiana state board of health, was here Tuesday night in conference with Dr. A. G. Osterman, representative of the United States public health service in the Fourth congressional district, relative to the establishment in this city of a free clinic for the treatment and cure of venereal diseases. The federal health service is co-operating with the state board of health in combatting these diseases which result in death and ruined health to a surprisingly large number of people each year.

One feature of the campaign against these diseases is the establishment of clinics in various parts of the country where afflicted people may receive treatment until they are permanently cured. The clinics are maintained by the federal and state governments and free treatment is given when patients are unable to pay. Seymour was selected as a clinic site because of the favorable location to a large territory in southern Indiana.

Dr. Osterman, who has delivered addresses in every county in the Fourth congressional district relative to the establishment of such clinics, (Continued on page 4, column 4)

SENATOR ELSNER FAVORS SUFFRAGE

Will Cast Vote for Popular Issue at Special Session to be Called by Governor Goodrich.

NO DEFINITE DATE IS FIXED

Says Governor Has No Power to Limit Length of Special Session
Other Than is Fixed by Law.

E. P. Elsner, state senator, in speaking of the special session of legislature which will be called for the last week in August or the first week in September by Governor Goodrich to ratify the suffrage resolution, stated that he will vote in favor of the popular issue.

According to announcements that the special session would be called by the Governor it was also stated that he would limit the session to six days. Senator Elsner stated that the Governor has no power to place a limit on the length of sessions other than that fixed by law which is not to exceed sixty-one days for a general session or forty days for a special session.

Besides the suffrage question the Governor has announced that other matters of vital importance will be brought before the legislature. Senator Elsner stated that he did not know what the Governor expected to present but in his opinion it is likely that a bill will be introduced to repeal the tax law. It is pointed out that any senator or representative will have a right to introduce any bill he so desires at the special session the same as he would at the general assembly.

Senator Elsner stated that he had talked to a number of senators and representatives from different parts of the state who were of the opinion that the majority of the members of both houses would attend a one day session of legislature to settle the woman suffrage question without claiming their salaries, but if other matters are to come up for their consideration they will likely demand the same fees as allowed them for attending a regular session.

APPROPRIATION TO ENFORCE DRY LAWS

House Judiciary Completes Draft of Measure to Prevent Sale of Intoxicating Liquor.

ULTRA DRY LAW ACCEPTED

Can't Even Tell Where One May Get a Drink Without Violating Federal Law.

By United Press
Washington, June 25—Drastic legislation for strict enforcement of both war time and constitutional prohibition was completed by the house judiciary committee today.

With only slight modifications, the bill Chairman Volstead will submit to the house is the same as that proposed by the ultra-drys. An appropriation of $3,500,000 is provided to carry out the act.

The main provisions of the bill are: Any beverage containing more than one-half of one percent of alcohol is "intoxicating liquor."

When the war time prohibition act or constitutional prohibition goes into effect it shall be unlawful to "manufacture, sell, barter, give away, transport, import, export, deliver, furnish, receive or possess any intoxicating liquor except as authorized by this act." The only exceptions are for medicinal, scientific or sacramental purposes, or where liquor is stored in private homes before prohibition goes into effect for private use.

Punishment for violations is as follows:

A fine of not less than $100 nor more than $500 for the first offense and a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000 with imprisonment from thirty to ninety days for the second offense. A fine of not less than $500 and imprisonment for six months to six years is provided for the subsequent offenses.

Enforcement of the prohibition law is lodged with the commissioner of internal revenue and the department of justice.

Patent and proprietary medicine manufacturers must prove to the commission that their products cannot be used in place of intoxicating liquor. Liquor may be prescribed for medicinal purposes only by reputable physicians and not more than one prescription can be given in each ten days.

Permits must be obtained to manufacture liquor for legal purposes, bond being required. Ten days after the passage of the act all liquor illegally held must be disposed of or it shall be considered held in violation of the law. All liquor legally held must be reported to the prohibition commissioner.

Advertisement of intoxicating liquor by any method or telling any one where he can get a drink is prohibited. Bootleggers shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 and imprisoned for not less than one month or more than a year.

ACTION ON FALL RESOLUTION DEFERRED BY COMMITTEE

Senate Body Will Wait Until Germany Has Signed The Paris Treaty of Peace.

By United Press
Washington, June 25—The senate foreign relations committee by a vote of ten to four today deferred action on the fall resolution for a separate peace between the United States and Germany until the Germans have signed the Paris treaty.

A majority of the committee, according to Senators Lodge and Fall favored the resolution but regarded the present and inopportune time to press it. While the committee was reaching this conclusion on the fall resolution, Senator Borah in a brief but fiery speech to the senate declared the peace treaty a "guarantee of war," and sharply criticized the peace conference for ignoring the claims of Ireland and Korea.

Borah's speech coupled with remarks on the Irish question by Senator Thomas, Colorado, resulted in a discussion of that question.

WIRES WILL NOT GO BACK TO OWNERS BEFORE JULY 31

Senate and House Conferees Discuss
Telephone and Telegraph Lines Control.

By United Press
Washington, D. C., June 25—Telephone and telegraph lines will not go back in the hands of the owners before July 31, action of the house and senate conferees on the wire control bill indicated today.

Agreement has been reached on the house provision that the lines shall go back at the end of the calendar month in which the act is approved. Conferees are certain the report can not be approved by both houses and reach the president in time for his signature before July 1. The president probably would delay signing until after July 1 so that the confusion of a hasty and immediate return would be avoided.

Telephone companies under the terms of bill are given four months to lower rates in agreement with state and local utility commissions.

NEW TAX MEASURE TO BE CONSIDERED

Other Important Laws Will Be Discussed at Special Session of State Legislature.

TO BE HELD IN LATE SUMMER

Some Legislators Expect That 100
Per Cent. Assessment Feature
Will Be Modified.

By United Press

Indianapolis, June 25.—Some of the most important measures enacted by the Indiana legislation which adjourned March 10 as well as the ratification of the suffrage resolution will be taken up at the special session of the general assembly to be called late in August or early in September, according to state officials here today.

Governor Goodrich today admitted that the expenses of the state institutions will be one of the matters of importance to come before the assembly. He said the funds for the institutions are insufficient to carry them through to the next session in view of the high cost of maintenance.

Among the important statutes which may undergo pressure of amendment is the state tax law which has occasioned considerable comment throughout Indiana. It is explained by the advocates of the new taxation measure that it has not yet been given a fair trial but opposition to the one hundred per cent assessment feature of the new law has resulted in such radical increases in assessments of property that it is reported by several in close touch with legislative circles

TREATY DENOUNCED AS MERELY "SCRAP OF PAPER"

German Newspaper Calls on People
Not to Permit "Prussian Spirit to be Crushed."

By United Press

Berlin, June 25—The Berlin Vorwarts, majority socialist organ, today described the peace treaty as a "scrap of paper."

"Extortionate pressure renders signature of the peace treaty worthless," said the paper. "We must never forget it is only a scrap of paper. Treaties based on violence can keep their validity only so long as force exists. Do not lose hope, the resurrection day comes."

Another paper in an editorial declares that "it is our duty not to permit the Prussian spirit to be crushed."

MUST MAKE MAY AND JUNE REPORTS BY JULY 20th

Dealers Subject to "Luxury Tax" Who Do Not Comply With Regulations Liable to Penalty.

Dealers and others subject to the "luxury tax" and the tax on ice cream and similar articles sold at soda fountains who fail to make report, with collection of such taxes for the month of May and June on or prior to July 20 will be liable to penalty. To escape such penalty, if the neglect is unavoidable, reports should be made to the collector of internal revenue at Indianapolis with an explanation of the neglect or failure. The report for each month of tax due must be made before the twentieth day of the succeeding month.

The tax collector of this district has requested the local postmaster to call attention to this matter. Application for proper forms upon which to make these reports should be made to the collector's office at Indianapolis.

There have also been forwarded to the postmaster a copy of regulations No. 54 entitled "Sales by Dealers in Wearing Apparel, Etc" and a copy of regulations No. 53, entitled "Tax on Soft Drinks, Ice Cream and Similar Articles sold at Soda Fountains." It is assumed that dealers can get copies of these by addressing the district collector.

The postmaster is not permitted to give interpretations of the law or regulations and it will be useless to seek from him such interpretations by telephones or otherwise. Persons interested should address their inquiries to the collector's office or act upon their individual judgment after having read the law and regulations.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to take this means to express our appreciation to our neighbors and friends who so kindly aided us during the illness and after the death of my husband, Howard White. We especially thank the Rev. Mr. Lee for his comforting words and help, the choir, those who sent flowers, those who furnished automobiles, and J. W. Hustedt, the undertaker, for his services.

Mrs. Clara White.

The Rev. and Mrs. Russell Gwynn, of Indianapolis, and Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Banghman and daughter Bertha, of Scipio, spent yesterday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clark B. Davis, North Ewing Street.

FACTS ON CASHING WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Government Always Ready to Redeem Them With Interest, but It Means a Loss in the Earning Rate.

A considerable number of War Savings stamps are being cashed in Indiana. There is nothing alarming or illegal about this. The government intended that the small savings represented by War Savings stamps should be available in an emergency.

But the War Savings organization for Indiana points out that there is another aspect to be considered. Cashing War Savings stamps before the date of maturity or selling them to a scalper below par represents avoidable loss, thus defeating the very object of the stamps—the practice of thrift.

War Savings stamps held to maturity yield 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly; if cashed before maturity the interest amounts to only 3 per cent. Selling to scalpers represents a still greater loss.

Every effort is being made by the government this year to inject a little of real joy into thrift. Under stress of war this perhaps was overlooked. War Savings workers were carried away with their enthusiasm. Methods of campaigning in some districts probably resulted in some persons becoming unwilling buyers of stamps. The government wants no unwilling buyers, nor does it want unwilling holders of stamps.

Many of those who have been cashing stamps at this time may be classed as unwilling holders. Means adopted in some quarters to induce these to retain their stamps have created a panicky feeling among other holders. Many rushed to the post offices to give their ten days' notice. With those who met with no "strong-arm" methods to prevent the cashing of stamps confidence was restored and the next day they promptly forgot about having given notice.

Every applicant for redemption now receives the following letter from the postmaster:

"Your application has been placed on file, and your money will be ready for you in cash ten days after the date of your application provided your stamps are properly affixed to a War Savings certificate issued in your name.

"You will receive more cash than you originally paid for any stamp which you have held more than one month. These stamps of course earn interest. They, therefore, increase in value month by month. In five years, stamps costing from $4.12 to $4.23 are worth $5. In other words, the money invested in each stamp earns from 77 cents to 88 cents, or interest at more than 4 per cent per annum.

"Do you know, however, that you do not have to take

VACATION SAVINGS AND THRIFT WEEK

Indiana W. S. S. Workers Putting Into Effect a Practical Educational Campaign.

The War Savings campaign is proceeding in Indiana with renewed energy. To get into every household suggestions that will be helpful in wise spending and sane saving the War Savings Organization for Indiana is conducting a vacation savings campaign and making preparations for "Thrift Week," beginning June 23.

"Thrift Week" will not be a spectacular or coercive "drive" such as marked the activities of the War Savings Organization last year when the raising of a certain sum of money was the chief objective. It will be a house-to-house canvass under the direction of the county chairman in each county, with a view to educating the citizens of Indiana in the practice of thrift. The canvass includes:

- (a) Obtaining pledges for the regular purchase, if possible, of Thrift and War Savings stamps during the balance of the year.
- (b) Putting into every household a small blank record sheet for household expenses, accompanied by an order card through which those desiring to establish the budget system in the home may obtain complete forms and instructions.
- (c) Distribution of War Savings literature.
- (d) Distribution of new War Savings buttons to all signing pledge cards.

The vacation Savings campaign began with the closing of the schools. It includes:

- (a) Taking of pledges for the saving by pupils of 10 per cent or more of their earnings or allowances during the vacation period, for investment in Thrift or War Savings stamps weekly, monthly or upon the pupil's return to school in the fall.

- (b) Making it a point to know the opportunities for spare-time employment open to boys and girls, and encouraging them to take advantage of such opportunities. If the pupils can earn money during the vacation period it naturally follows that they will have money for saving and investing.

- (c) Obtaining reports on the success of the vacation Savings plan soon after the beginning of the fall term of school.

The Indiana Organization has just finished a drive for the establishment of War Savings and Thrift stamp agencies "wherever money passes over the counter." Secretary of the Treasury Glass believes the only compulsion in the purchase of War Savings Stamps should be self-applied, but it is necessary to facilitate the practice of thrift.

The drive for agencies has made it easier for savers to invest their savings. By shortening the distance between the inclination to save and the actual purchase of a Thrift or War Savings Stamp—through the establishment of many agencies—the War Savings Organization expects to head off many temptations to spend foolishly.

A STITCH IN TIME.

SAYS KEEP DOLLARS GROWING.

Indianapolis, Ind., June —"Keep the Dollars Growing," is the Treasury Department's slogan, according to Robert E. Springsteen, director of the Indiana War Savings Committee. Mr. Springsteen's committee is urging citizens of Indiana to convert the coupons of their Liberty Bonds into War Savings Stamps. In this manner the bond holder is able to keep his dollars growing.

"June 15 is again pay day in the United States," said Mr. Springsteen. "On that day Uncle Sam owes his people $36,000,658.00 in interest on the first Liberty Loan. The interest coupon can be exchanged at the post office or almost any bank for War Savings Stamps, which pay 4 per cent compounded quarterly."

"Everybody who can afford it (and everybody ought to be able to save) should reinvest money in the stamps. They are a good investment and they help float government expenses."

(With Apologies to Kipling.)

It ain't the tens nor fifties
You earn from day to day
Nor yet the fives or two-spots
That you gather on the way;
It Ain't the million billionaire
Nor the nation as a whole,
But the nickles and the pennies
From each patriotic soul.

"N-R-G" WIZARDS ARE HERE

Soldiers' Letter.

Miss Daisy Smith has received the following letter from her cousin, Orvis Steinberger:

Romagne, France,
June 1, 1919.

Dear Cousin and All.

Your most welcome letter just received and was more than pleased to hear from you, and Daisy I would have written you before now but I did not know your address, I had it when I left the States but I lost it, and now that I have never written you before I will try my best to tell you my experiences up to the present time. We left the States on the 28th day of August, 1918, sailing from New Port News, Virginia, we steamed up the Atlantic coast to New York harbor arriving there on the 29th, here we laid at anchor for five days waiting on other ships that were to be in our convoy and on September 3, we sailed for foreign soil with about 15 ships in our convoy, it was a wonderful trip indeed for me, we did not see any submarines but the destroyers were continually circling around us looking for them, I was only afraid at one time during the entire trip, and that was on Sept. 13, we were lost from our entire convoy for two days right in the danger zone, I slept with my clothes on those 2 nights ready to get out on a minutes notice in case we were torpedoed and maybe you think I wasn't a tickled bird when I got up the next morning and saw the other boats ahead of us. Quite a few of the boys got sick on the way over but it did not affect me in the least, but we were fed very poor on the way over. We came over on an English ship, we were on the water 20 days, landing in Liverpool, England on Sept. 16, here we boarded a train for Southampton, we were on the train all that night as we had to go all the way across England. Here we boarded a ship, again crossing the English

Channel, arriving at Le Harve, France the next morning. Here we rested for two days, then took a train for Angouleme which is in southern France. It took us about 4 days to go there, here we stayed for one month for training, then left on October 20, for the front, arriving at Clermont on the 23rd, it was night when we got there and the train had just stopped when we received a warm reception from the clouds, our first touch of what was going on near the front. Jerry dropped about 3 or 4 bombs but as luck would have it none of them hit the train, and believe me there was a scared bunch of boys there including myself, here we received our trucks and went to work at once hauling ammunition but we only had 19 days of actual service but believe me I saw all that I cared to see in those 19 days. We were sure a happy bunch when we got the good news of the signing of the armistice, and I will never forget that night as long as I live. I will have quite a bit to tell you when I get back for I have seen things that are worth talking about, things that one cannot think of while writing a letter. I have been in 5 different European countries now, England, France, Italy, Belgium and Germany and may see more before I get out of here, but of all of these there is no place like the dear old U. S. A. and I expect to be back there now in the near future, for the papers state that all troops will be out of France by the first of August. Well I must close now, hoping these few lines will find you all enjoying the best of health, I remain,

Your Cousin and Nephew,

Veteran British Traveler Will Spend Six Years in South Pole Region.

London.—John L. Cope, veteran antarctic explorer, is organizing an expedition to pass six years in the south pole region. The exploring party is to be known as the "British Imperial antarctic expedition." It will leave England in the famous ship Terra Nova in June, 1920, and will not return until 1926.

An airplane is to be taken on the expedition and a flight in it to the south pole is contemplated. The plane will also be used to facilitate the surveying of the antarctic regions.

Mr. Cope will also take with him the latest wireless telegraphic devices to enable him to keep in constant touch with the rest of the world while he is making his explorations.

The main object of the expedition is to ascertain the position and extent of the mineralogical and other deposits of economic value known to exist in Antarctica, and arrange for their practical development as a further source of imperial wealth.

TRAIN APES AS FARM HANDS

Doctor Garner Plans Establishing Colony of Chimpanzees in United States.

New York.—Dr. Richard Lynch Garner announced his intention of establishing a colony of chimpanzees and gorillas in the United States to uplift the entire ape race. He has just returned after two and one-half years spent in the French Congo for the Smithsonian institution.

The professor said he believes apes, if given the advantage of modern education and environment, would develop into a race that would sow and reap and toil in the mills. In refined young lady apes the professor sees a possible solution of the servant problem.

"Sam, a boy ape that shared my home in Africa, learned to fetch things I called for," he said. "He became as particular as I about bed sheets being smoothed out, and couldn't go to sleep without a pillow. If man could train a dog to herd sheep, man can make a farm hand out of an ape."

LATINS BUILD BETTER HOMES

Influence of Italians Who Have Lived in United States Aids Movement.

Rome.—The Italian who has lived long in America is helping to Americanize Italy more potently than any other factor. He has introduced American ideas and Americans ways of doing things at every possible turn when it is practical and more efficient than the Italian.

The Italo-American has brought back from America an idea of better housing conditions, and if he decides to settle again in Italy he builds a home patterned along American lines with plenty of space around it, and with its division of rooms.

Medicines Used by Monks.

It is claimed that Monks of ancient days knew of more than three hundred species of medicinal plants used in general for medicines by these religious orders. While centuries have passed, with all the advance made in medical science, many of our most successful remedies are today made from the roots and herbs of the field, like that good, old-fashioned remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for more than forty years has been relieving women from some of the worst forms of female ills, and is now considered the standard remedy.

tive to venereal diseases and the new methods of curing them, stated that under the plan which is adopted by the federal government and the state the city is required to furnish the rooms and equipment for the clinics and the treatment is furnished by the government. Three or four rooms would be required, he said and the city would be asked to provide heat and light.

"The clinic would be conducted free of charge to those who are unable to pay," said Dr. Osterman. "The work would be conducted quietly and the clinic would not be a loafing place. It would be placed under the direction of someone with police authority. In case patients did not desire to take treatment at the clinic they may receive it from their own physician. The government is determined to fight venereal diseases and if it can't do it one way it will adopt some other plan."

If a local physician is not equipped and qualified to conduct the clinic a special physician will be sent here by the government, Dr. Osterman said. One or more nurses will also be employed. An ordinance providing for the control of such diseases was recently adopted by the city council. Similar action has been taken by nearly every city and town in the country as the public is thoroughly awakened to the necessity of co-operating with the government in the control of these diseases.

Dr. Royce will return here July 8 when he will be the guest of the Rotary club. He will explain the purpose of the clinic at that time and it is believed by local people who are interested in the movement that little trouble will be experienced in raising the necessary money to maintain the clinic.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Kamman left this morning for a few days' visit in Cincinnati.

What Is Rheumatism? Why Suffer from It?

Sufferers Should Realize That It Is a Blood Infection.

Doubtless like other sufferers, you have often asked yourself this question, which continues to remain unanswered.

Science has proven that Rheumatism is caused by a germ in your blood, and the only way to reach it is by a remedy which eliminates and removes these little pain demons. This explains why liniments and lotions can do no permanent good, for they cannot possibly reach these germs, which infest your blood by the millions.

S. S. S. has been successfully used for Rheumatism for more than fifty years. Try it to-day, and you will find yourself at last on the right track to get rid of your Rheumatism. For treatment of your individual case address Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. 43, Atlanta, Ga.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Last of the Namur.

The vessel was plainly a total wreck, rapidly pounding to death on a sharp ledge of rock. Both masts were down, and, lifted as the bow was, it was easy to perceive the deck was in splinters where falling spars and topmasts had crushed their way through. The bows had caught, seemingly jammed in between rocks, the stern sunk deep, with cabin port holes barely above reach of the waves. Not a living thing appeared on board, and, as the fog slowly drifted away, my eyes could discern no sign of any boat, no evidence of the crew, along the wide sweep of water. A voice aroused me.

"What was it you said, Jack, 'bout treasure on the old hooker? Why not get it afore it's too late?"

"It's thar, all right, Ole," and I knew the speaker to be Haines. "Ain't it, Mr. Carlyle?"

"Yes, lads, there must be money on board, unless those fellows took it with them in the boats. I know of fifty thousand pounds stolen in Virginia, and no doubt there is more than that. The bark is liable to slide off that rock any minute and go down like a stone. What do you say, bullies? Here is a risky job, but a pocket full of gold pieces, if we can get aboard and safely off again. Who'll go across with me?"

There was a babel of voices, the men crowding about me, all else forgotten as greed gripped their imaginations.

"Stand back, lads! I cannot use all of you. Four will be enough. You'll not lose anything of what we bring back; it'll be share and share alike, so fall to, hearties."

I paused an instant to speak to Dorothy, seated on the flag locker, explaining to her swiftly my object in exploring the wreck and pledging myself not to be reckless in attempting to board. I read fear in her eyes, yet she said nothing to dissuade me.

I slipped down a rope and dropped into the boat, taking my place with a steering oar at the stern, and we shot away through the green water. The Namur proved to be a more complete wreck than our distant view had revealed, and lying in a more precarious position. It was no pleasant job getting aboard, but ordering Haines to accompany me, and the others to lie by, I made use of a dangling backstay, and thus hauled myself up to a reasonably secure footing. The fellow joined me breathless, and together we perched on the rail to gain view of the deck.

It was a distressing, hopeless sight, the vessel rising before us like the roof of a house, the deck planks stove in, a horrible jumble of running rigging, booms and spars, blocking the way forward. There were three bodies tangled in the wreckage within our sight, crushed out of all human resemblance, and the face of a negro, caught beneath the ruins of the galley, seemed to grin back at me in death. Every timber groaned as the waves struck and rocked the sodden mass, and I had no doubt but that the vessel had already broken in two.

Haines was evidently reluctant, but sailor enough to follow as I lowered myself to the deck, clinging hard to keep my footing on the wet incline. A light spar had lodged here, and by making this a species of bridge, we crept as far as the companion, the door of which was open, and gained a view of the scene below. It was a dismal hole in the dim light, but presented no obstacle to our entrance, and I led the way down the stairs, gripping the rail to keep from falling.

The door of the captain's room gave, but it required our combined efforts to press it open against the volume of water, slushing about within. For a moment my eyes could scarcely recognize the various objects as I clung to the frame of the door and stared blindly about in the gloom. Then slowly they assumed shape and substance. Screwed to the deck, the furniture retained its place, but everything else was jammed in a mass of wreckage, or else floating about in a foot of water, deepening toward the stern. There were two chests in the room, one of which I instantly recognized as that of Roger Fairfax. The sight of this made me oblivious to all else.

"There's the chest we want, Haines," I cried, pointing it out. "Have the lads back the boat up to this port; then come down and help me handle it."

"Yes, sir," his voice trembling, "but— isn't that a man over there—in the bunk? Good God, sir; look at him!"

The white, ghastly face stared at us, looking like nothing human in that awful twilight. I actually thought it a ghost, until with desperate effort the man lifted himself, clinging with gaunt fingers to the edge of the bunk. Then I knew.

"Sanchez! You! those cowards left you here to die!"

"No one came for me," he answered, choking so the words were scarcely intelligible. "Who are you, and what brought you here?"

"I'll tell you frankly, Captain Sanchez," and I stepped closer. "We risked coming aboard to save that chest—Roger Fairfax's chest—before it went down. This vessel has its back broken, and may slide off into deep water at any minute. We must get you out of here first."

"Get me out!" he laughed hideously. "To hell with your help. I want none of it. I am a dead man now, and the easiest way to end all will be to go down with the ship—'twill be a fit coffin for Black Sanchez. By God! I know you now—Geoffrey Carlyle?"

"Yes, but an enemy no longer."

"That is for me to say. I hate your race, your breed. The very sound of your name drives me mad. I accept no rescue from you! Damn you, take your gold and go."

"But why?" I insisted, shocked at the man's violence. "Is it because I interfered between you and Dorothy Fairfax?"

"That chit; bah, what do I care for her but as a plaything. No, my hate runs deeper than that. How came you here—in the boat stolen from the Namur?"

"No, Captain Sanchez. The day after we left the ship we boarded a schooner found adrift, the crew stricken with cholera, with not a man left alive on deck, or below. She lies yonder now, the Santa Marie—a slaver."

"Merciful God!" and his eyes fairly blazed into mine as he suddenly forced his body upward in the bunk. "The Santa Marie adrift! the crew dead from cholera? And the captain—Paradilla, Francis Paradilla—what of him?"

"He lay alone on a divan in the cabin—dead also."

He tried to speak, but, failed, his fingers claving at his throat. When he finally gained utterance once more it was but a whisper.

"Tell me," he begged, "there was no woman with him?"

"There was no woman," I said gravely, "on deck or in the cabin."

"What mean you by saying that? There was one on board! Don't lie to me! In an hour I am dead—but first tell me the truth. Does the woman live?"

"No, she died before. We found her body in a chest, preserved by some devilish Indian art, richly dressed and decked with jewels."

"Eng'ish?"

"I judged her so, but with dark hair and eyes. You knew her?"

"In the name of all the fiends, yes. And I know her end. He killed her—Paradilla killed her—because she was as false to him as she had been to me. Hell! but it is strange you should be the one to find her—to bring me this tale, Geoffrey Carlyle!"

"Why? What is it to me?"

"You go back to England and tell the duke of Buccleugh how his precious sister died."

"His sister! Good God, you cannot mean that woman was Lady Sara Carlyle?"

"Who should know better than I?" sneeringly. "Once I was called in England Sir John Collinswood."

He sank back exhausted, struggling for breath, but with eyes glowing hatred. I knew it all now, the dimly remembered story coming vividly back to memory. Here then was the ending of the one black stain on the family honor of our race. On this strange coast, three thousand miles from its beginning, the final curtain was being rung down, the drama finished. The story had come to me in whispers from others, never even spoken about by those of our race—a wild, headstrong girl, a secret marriage, a duel in the park, her brother desperately wounded, and then the disappearance of the pair. Ten days later it was known that Sir John Collinswood had defaulted in a large sum—but from that hour England knew him no more. As though the sea had swallowed them both, man and woman disappeared, leaving no trace behind.

The face I gazed dumbly into was drawn and white with pain, yet the thin lips grinned back at me in savage derision.

"You remember, I see," he snarled. "Then out of here, Geoffrey Carlyle. Leave me to die in peace. The gold is there; take it, and my curse upon it. Hurry now—do you hear the back grate on the rocks; it's near the end."

CHAPTER XXXIII.

Before the Governor.

The sound startled me; I imagined I heard the keel slipping, yet before we had reached the door opening on deck the slight movement ceased. My hand gripped the frightened Haines.

"Tell them in the boat to do as I said; then come back here."

"My God, sir, she's a goin' down."

"Not for some minutes yet. There are thousands of pounds in that chest; you've risked life for less many a time. Jump, my man!"

The boat lay in close, bobbing up and down dangerously, yet held firmly beneath the opened port. The box was heavy enough to tax the strength of two men to handle it, but of a size and shape permitting its passage. Sanchez had raised himself again, and clung there to the edge of the bunk watching us.

"Now let down easy, lads," I called. "No, place it amidships; get it even, or you go over. Fix it to ride steady, and stand by—we'll pass a wounded man out to you!"

I stepped across to Sanchez. He saw me coming, and drew back, his ghastly face like a mask.

"No you don't, Carlyle!" he snapped angrily. "Keep your hands off me. So you want me to die with my neck in a noose, do you? I was born a gentleman, and by God! I'll die like one—and go down with my ship. Get out of here now! You won't? You will, or else die here with me! I'll give you a minute to make your choice."

He left no doubt as to his meaning. From beneath the blanket, the black muzzle of a pistol looked straight into my eyes. The hand holding it was firm, the face fronting me savagely sardonic.

"I'd like to kill you, Carlyle," he hissed hatefully. "By God, I don't know why I shouldn't. Every time I look at you I see her face. If you take a step nearer I pull the trigger—go!"

It was a hard pull back to the Santa Marie. Dorothy greeted me first, and we stood close together at the rail as the men hoisted the chest on deck. She said nothing, asked nothing, but her hands clung to my arm, and whenever I turned toward her our eyes met.

There was a sudden cry forward, and a voice shouted:

"There she goes, buckies! That's the last of the Namur!"

I turned swiftly, my hand grasping her fingers as they clung to the rail. The battered hulk slid downward, the deck breaking amidships as the stern splashed into the depths; then that also toppled over, leaving nothing above water except the blunt end of a broken bowsprit, and a tangle of wreckage tossed about on the crest of the waves. I watched breathlessly, unable to utter a sound; I could only think of that stricken man in the cabin, those wild eyes which had threatened me. He was gone now—gone!

I yet held Dorothy's hand tightly clasped in my own, and the depths of her uplifted eyes questioned me.

"We will go aft, dear, and I will tell you the whole story," I said gently, "for now we are homeward bound."

I write these few closing lines a year later in the cabin of the Ocean Spray, a three master, full to the hatches with a cargo of tobacco, bound for London, and a market. Dorothy is on deck, eagerly watching for the first glimpse of the chalk cliffs of old England. I must join her presently, yet linger below to add these final sentences.

There is, after all, little which needs to be said. The voyage of the Santa Marie north proved uneventful, and, after that first night of storm, the weather held pleasant and the sea fairly smooth. I had some trouble with the men, but nothing serious, as Watkins and Haines held as I did, and the pledge of Dorothy's influence brought courage. I refused to open the chest, believing our safety, and chance of pardon, would depend largely on our handing this over in good faith to the authorities. Watkins and I guarded it night and day until the schooner rounded the cape and came into the Chesapeake. No attempt was made to find quarters below, the entire crew sleeping on deck, Dorothy comfortable on the flag locker.

It was scarcely sunrise, on the fifth day, when we dropped anchor against the current of the James, our sails furled and the red English colors flying from the peak. Two hours later the entire company were in the presence of the governor, where I told my story, gravely listened to, supplemented by the earnest plea of the young woman. I shall never forget that scene, or how breathlessly we awaited the decision of the great man, who so closely watched our faces. They were surely a strange, rough group as they stood thus, hats in hand, waiting to learn their fate, shaggy-haired, unshaven, largely scum of the sea, never before in such presence, shuffling uneasily before his glance, feeling to the full the peril of their position. Their eyes turned to me questioningly.

Opposite us, behind a long table, sat the governor, dignified, austere, his hair powdered and face smoothly shaven; while on either side of him were those of his council, many of the faces stern and unforgiving. But for their gracious reception of Dorothy and their careful attention to her words I should have lost heart. They questioned me shrewdly, although the governor spoke but seldom, and then in a kindly tone of sympathy and understanding. One by one the men were called forward, each in turn compelled to tell briefly the story of his life; and when all was done the eyes of the governor sought those of the council.

"You have all alike heard the tale, gentlemen," he said. "Nothing like it hath ever before been brought before this colony. Would you leave decision to me?"

There was a murmur of assent, as though they were thus gladly relieved of responsibility in so serious a matter. The governor smiled, his kindly eyes surveying us once more; then, with extended hand he bade Dorothy be seated.

"The story is seemingly an honest one," he said slowly, "and these seamen have done a great service to the colony. They deserve reward rather than punishment. The fair lady who pleads for them is known to us all, and to even question her word is impossible. Unfortunately I have not the power of pardon in cases of piracy, nor authority to free bond slaves, without the approval of the home government; yet will exercise in this case whatsoever of power I possess. For gallant services rendered to the colony, and unselfish devotion to Mistress Dorothy Fairfax, I release Geoffrey Carlyle from servitude pending advice from England; I also grant parole to these seamen, on condition they remain within our jurisdiction until this judgment can be confirmed and full pardons issued. Is this judgment satisfactory, gentlemen?"

The members of the council bowed gravely, without speaking.

"The chest of treasure recovered from the sunken pirate ship," he went on soberly, "will remain unopened until final decision is made. As I understand, Master Carlyle, no one among you has yet seen its contents, or estimated its value?"

"No, your excellency. Beyond doubt it contains the gold stolen from Roger Fairfax; and possibly the result of other robberies at sea."

"The law of England is that a certain percentage of such recovered treasure belongs to the crown, the remainder, its true ownership undetermined, to be fairly divided among those recovering it."

"Yet," spoke up Dorothy quickly, "it must surely be possible to waive all claim in such cases?"

"Certainly; as private property it can be disposed of in any way desired. Was that your thought?"

"A Fairfax always pays his debt," she said proudly, "and this is mine."

There was a moment's silence as though each one present hesitated to speak. She had risen, and yet stood, but with eyes lowered to the floor. Then they were lifted and met mine in all frank honesty.

"There is another debt I owe," she said clearly, "and would pay, your excellency."

"What is that, fair mistress?"

She crossed to me, her hand upon my arm.

"To become the wife of Geoffrey Carlyle."

THE END.

WILL RETURN THE
LADY IN EXCHANGE
FOR THE TREASURE

CRUDELY printed in pencil on a piece of dirty brown paper, and stuck there with a sailor's rusty knife, was this message. And well they knew what it meant. The girl they had sought for days and believed to be lost—now they knew her to be worse than lost.

Calypso, with her pure, olive skin and black, silken hair—Calypso, the beautiful Spanish girl who had masked as a boy and begged to be allowed to go with the rest on their perilous journey—

Should he give up the treasure that he and his party—some of whom had paid the supreme price—had fought and repeatedly risked their lives for; should he give up this wealth of gold and jewels for the girl he adored, or trust to mercy of his enemies for her safety?

This is the situation created by Richard Le Gallienne—in his inimitable way of writing—in

Hez Hooper Sez:

"The kid come home from the war yesterday and mebbe you think we weren't glad to see him. He got into the fuss early, and came back wearin' a couple gold stripes on his left sleeve and one on his right. Stopped a machine gun bullet somewhere up there in Bellow woods, or whatever it is they call it. We're proud of him and happy to have him back.

"He was plum w'd to get into a suit of civies, so I brought him into town this mornin' and told him to pick out what he wanted and hand me the bills.

"Holy Smoke, Dad,' he said, after he had picked out one of those slash pocket, waist belted affairs they're all wearin' these days, 'I'm keen on this costume, but look at the price barrage he's layin' down on me—Fifty simoleons, dad, fifty good hard iron men—Why I never paid more than $30.00 for a suit before the war, and I always thought I was gettin' some fairly good suits.'

"Of course, it was up to the clothing man to explain, and he did. He told us all about the scarcity and high price of wool, how the government had used great quantities of 'uniforms, woolen, O. D.' for some four million doughboys, how labor was gettin' higher prices than ever before, and told us he was afraid prices wouldn't go down much for a long time.

"I guess everythings higher than it was before the war,' said the boy.

"Yes everythin' 'ceptin' telephone service' I answered. 'People are queer in some ways; they expect the clothing man and the grocer to raise his prices when the wholesaler and manufacturer raise on them, but when it comes to a telephone company, why, they seem to figger that all they're in business for is to help make talk cheap; ain't that about right now?,' I asked the clothing man.

"Guess you're about right" laughed the merchant, we have been getting telephone service pretty cheap. I don't see how, in the face of advancing prices on labor and material, you've been able to pay interest on your investment.'

"Well, the dividends we've been payin' the last few years wouldn't look much like dividends to a clothin' merchants, I told him, 'Why we haven't even paid 6%. Guess I'll sell my telephone stock and buy a clothin' store.'

Jackson county farmers are experiencing some trouble in getting their wheat harvested. Rain on Tuesday night again delayed the work, but the harvesters were busy in many fields by the middle of the morning. The farmers are making every minute count as much of the wheat is dead ripe and is shattering badly. The rain has resulted in some loss and damage as the straw has been beaten down and it is impossible to save all the crop.
